

ENERGY POLICY AND FACILITY SITING

World events, concerns about greenhouse gas emissions and economics are impacting how we generate, transport, use and regulate energy. From anticipating and navigating trends in policy and law to securing political and public support for new facilities, our team has the experience, perspective and know-how to position you for success. Project development is too expensive and time consuming, and frankly too important, to neglect the dramatic effect that communities, elected officials, and the media can have on the success or failure of your project. Let us show you why nearly all of the northwest's largest energy companies have hired Gallatin to help with their most important projects.

“Ridgeline Energy had an immediate need to disseminate accurate information about project benefits and defuse exaggerated statements from the opposition. On short notice, Gallatin prepared and implemented a comprehensive plan that mobilized our support base and successfully got Ridgeline’s message across. Ridgeline is extremely pleased with the results and strongly recommends Gallatin Public Affairs.”
