Foreword

The Tennessee Independent Colleges and Universities Association (TICUA) is pleased to present the results of its fall 2009 alternative academic program survey. The purpose of this survey was to gain a better understanding of the educational opportunities available to students beyond the 35 member institution main campuses. This report includes data on off-site and satellite campuses, dual enrollment, and on-line programs including, where available, location, the array of degree and/or certificate programs offered, and the number of students served by each program.

The survey found that many TICUA member institutions offer academic programs that are alternatives to traditional classroom instruction. These campuses provide over 75 off-site or satellite programs to students beyond their main campus. In the fall of 2009, nearly 7,000 students were served by these off-site and satellite campuses. The off-site facilities present students with alternatives to study a variety of programs (and obtain an array of degrees) in education, business, nursing, ministry, as well as many others. By providing further opportunities for students to participate in higher education, TICUA member institutions are improving access for thousands of students.

We hope that this report is helpful to you. We strive to make sure that the information contained in this publication is as accurate and current as possible. This study reflects the information available at the time the study was completed. It should be noted that the type of programs reviewed in this report can be added or removed at any time depending on student demand or institutional priority.

We welcome your thoughts and comments on this publication at research@ticua.org.

Off-site/Satellite Campus

In the fall of 2009, more than 7,000 students were enrolled in courses or programs away from the main campuses of the 35 members of the Tennessee Independent Colleges and Universities Association. This figure represents nearly 10 percent of the total enrollment for TICUA member institutions. In addition to their main campuses, Tennessee's private colleges and universities operate 75 satellite and off-site degree programs, including 13 out-of-state locations.

The off-site/satellite locations are dispersed across 32 of Tennessee's 95 counties. Including TICUA main campuses, TICUA institutions provide educational opportunities to students in 39 Tennessee counties in the State. Six offsite locations are located in Virginia, three are located in Kentucky, two in California, one in New York, and one in North Carolina.

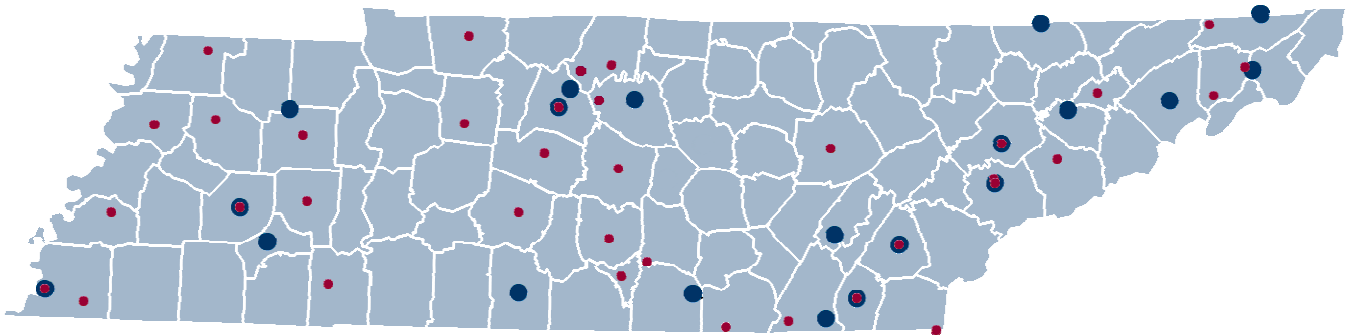

Figure 2 illustrates all TICUA member institution main campuses, as well as the 75 off-site and satellite campus locations. This map provides a complete picture of the additional educational enrichment and degree completion opportunities to students throughout the State.

Many of the satellite sites are the result of a partnership with another institution or agency. These include churches, community colleges, public libraries, K-12 schools or districts, and businesses.

Online Education

Eighteen responding institutions indicated that they offer select courses entirely on-line. This study defines a course as a typical semester long class or its equivalent. Combined these institutions offered a total of 343 courses to 3,617 students. These students represent 5% of the total enrollment at TICUA member institutions.

Additionally, six institutions indicated that they offer certain academic programs entirely on-line. A program is defined as a series of courses or requirements for which a successful completion results in the earning of a degree or certificate. These programs offer students the opportunity to work on degree programs from anywhere in the State or beyond. Although the number of disciplines is limited, 264 students are enrolled in these on-line programs at Bethel University, Christian Brothers University, Free Will Baptist Bible College, Freed-Hardeman University, Johnson Bible College and Southern Adventist University.

Six colleges offer hybrid courses, defined as courses taught partially on-line and partially on-site. Together Baptist College of Health Sciences, Belmont University, Bryan College, Carson-Newman College, Christian Brothers University and Lambuth University offered 49 hybrid courses, which enrolled 540 students.

Six private colleges offered hybrid programs, defined as programs for which courses are offered in on-line, on-site, and hybrid formats, where a successful completion will result in the awarding of a degree or certificate. Belmont University, Bethel University, Bryan College, Milligan College, Trevecca Nazarene University and Tusculum College enrolled 1251 students in hybrid programs in fall 2009.

Dual Credit

Dual Credit refers to courses offered at a high school that are taught at a college level. Students receive both high school and college credit. Dual credit courses differ from dual enrollment courses. In dual enrollment, high school students enroll at a college campus in a college level course and receive credit from both the college and the high school.

According to responses to the survey, 11 TICUA member campuses partner with high schools to offer dual credit classes. In the fall of 2009 these courses enrolled over 1,000 high school students from 23 different high schools or school systems. Home-schooled students were also able to take advantage of the dual credit opportunity.

Subject areas varied from campus to campus. English was the most common offering, available at more than half of the institutions. The majority of courses offered are core courses in math, history, and the sciences, but courses in religion and foreign languages are also available.

Cross Campus Collaborations

The TICUA member institutions participate in a variety of collaboration with other private institutions, public universities, and educational consortia.

Some of these collaborations, such as the Kingsport Center for Higher Education provide campuses a setting through which to offer courses or programs leading to a degree. Information on these types of programs is summarized in the section about satellite campuses and off-site programs.

Some campuses have partnered in more complex ways. Two distinct partnerships exist in Middle Tennessee to educate nurses and other medical professionals. Trevecca Nazarene University and Free Will Bible Baptist College have partnered with Belmont to provide opportunities for students to earn nursing degrees. Similarly, Lipscomb University and Trevecca Nazarene University students have the opportunity to take classes or earn clinical experience at Vanderbilt University.

Meharry Medical College and Vanderbilt University established an alliance in 1999 that supports and facilitates joint programs in research, teaching, clinical care, and community service with a special focus on promoting diversity within each institution, and in reducing health disparities through research, education and more effective patient care. The alliance allows medical students at both institutions greater choice in elective courses and broader residency and fellowship options.

Fisk University students are able to enroll in courses at Watkins College of Art, Design & Film to complete minors in film studies, interior design or a concentration in graphic design.

In West Tennessee, the Greater Memphis Consortium, consisting of Christian Brothers University, LeMoyne-Owen College, Memphis College of Art, and Memphis Theological Seminary, allows students to take nearly any course, up to six credit hours per semester, at a member institution for credit at their home institution. Additionally, Southern College of Optometry students are able to earn an MBA through enrollment at Christian Brothers University.

Reserve Officer Training Corp programs are another example of partnerships. Rhodes College partners with the University of Memphis and Vanderbilt University partners with other local colleges to offer ROTC opportunities to their students.

In Jackson, Union University students are able to enroll in classes at Lambuth University or at Freed-Hardeman University for credit.

Johnson Bible College belongs to the Christian College Consortium for Distance Learning Courses allowing students from other members to take courses on line at Johnson Bible College or for JBC students to take on-line classes from other members.

Three-Year Baccalaureate Programs

Three TICUA member institutions offer programs leading to a Baccalaureate degree in three years.

Through its SUCCESS program, Bethel University students are able to complete a degree in three years.

Beginning in the fall of 2009, Lipscomb University students are able to earn a baccalaureate degree in over 50 disciplines by attending year round.

Union University offers students the opportunity to a bachelor's in chemical physics in three years.

Other Programs of Note

Hollis F. Price Middle College, a Memphis City School located on the historic campus of LeMoyne-Owen College, accepts students who are entering the 9th grade and a limited number of students who are entering the 10th grade. It is designed under the Early College High School Initiative where students can earn both a high school diploma and two years of college credit toward a bachelor's degree. Hollis F. Price Middle College also has the distinction and recognition of being the first Early College located on a historically black college or university.

David Lipscomb Campus School, on the Lipscomb University campus, is a college preparatory, Christian school, serving students from Pre-Kindergarten through 12th grade.

Several campuses offer accelerated degree programs for adult learners. These programs typically meet at night or weekends and offer classes geared toward non-traditional students and their needs. Aquinas College, Baptist College of Health Sciences, Belmont University, Bethel University, Johnson Bible College, LeMoyne-Owen College, Trevecca Nazarene University and Tusculum College are among the institutions offering this type of program.

Lambuth University offers a three-year residency program through which students study at Lambuth through their junior year. After completing three years at Lambuth, including core and major requirements and a minimum of 96 credit hours, students may earn a bachelor's degree from Lambuth by transferring 32 credit hours from a professional school.

Externship programs at the Southern College of Optometry allow fourth year doctoral students to spend a third of the year working in private practices and medical institutions to assist in the provision of eye/vision health care.

Free Will Bible Baptist College offers "Lifetime Learning" courses, which are delivered through DVDs. These courses are similar to correspondence courses, but differ from on-line courses in that they do not use the asynchronous delivery system used in on-line courses.

Methodology

The purpose of this survey was to gain a better understanding of the educational opportunities available to students beyond TICUA member's 35 main campus locations.

TICUA compiled the study results from a survey conducted during the fall of 2009. Additional information was drawn from campus websites. Follow-up phone calls were made to campuses to verify information. All but two of the 35 member institutions completed and returned the survey resulting in a response rate of 94%.

TICUA conducts this survey every other year.

Definitions

Off-Site or Satellite campus: A separate teaching-learning facility beyond the main campus. An off-site and/or satellite campus includes any facility offering programs toward degree and/or certificate completion to students in a location other than the main campus. This definition does not include study abroad programs, internships, or honors programs.

Course: A typical semester long class or equivalent.

Program: A series of courses or requirements, where a successful completion will result in the awarding of a degree or certificate.

Hybrid Course: A course taught partially on-line and partially on-site.

Hybrid Program: A program for which courses are offered in on-line, on-site, and hybrid formats, where a successful completion will result in the awarding of a degree or certificate.

Dual Credit: College credit awarded to high school students for classes taken at the high school. Please note that this is different from dual enrollment where students taking classes on a college campus receive high school credit for their college classes.

Three-Year Baccalaureate Program: An official program of the institution that offers students in selected programs the opportunity to complete a bachelor degree in 3 years by careful planning and the utilization of summer sessions or transfer credits. It does not include students who graduate in three years on their own accord.

Greater Memphis Consortium
The Greater Memphis Consortium consists of Christian Brothers University, LeMoyne-Owen College, Memphis College of Art, and Memphis Theological Seminary. Nearly all courses offered at each member institution are open to students from all member institutions. LeMoyne-Owen students may register for courses at another consortium institution with the approval of their academic advisor and a letter from the College's Registrar. A student may enroll for no more than six credit hours per semester at other Consortium institutions.

LeMoyne-Owen College/Meharry Medical College HBCU Wellness Program
The HBCU Wellness program supports student-led community-based participatory research, intervention, and prevention to eliminate health disparities in communities surrounding Tennessee private HBCUs. The program's main objective is to enhance the quality of life in these communities by increasing the awareness of health disparities and encouraging individuals to develop healthier lifestyle behaviors that eliminate health disparities. (Fall 2009 Enrollment: 16 students)

Advanced Degree Completion Program (ADCP) The Accelerated Degree Completion Program (ADCP) leads to a Bachelor's of Business Administration degree. The program is designed to meet the needs of working adults who are typically employed full-time and are highly committed to completing their degrees. ADCP students share a common educational goal and contribute their diverse individual experiences to the learning process. Students admitted to this program must have completed a substantial number of semester hours (usually 60) in an accredited post-secondary program. They must have reached the age of 25, or have worked continuously in a full-time position for the past three years. Applicants must meet general admissions requirements and be fully admitted to the college prior to consideration for the ADCP program.
